

Bullet in Cartridge?

Posted by StevoJ - 2012/10/17 19:34

Today i was relic hunting when i found this bullet in what looked like a brass cartridge, yet when looking at it further the bullet was at the bottom of the cartridge? Is this a rare find a common case or am I just crazy? I sure dont know

http://relichunting.net/home/images/fbfiles/images/user26337_pic40563_1350581385.jpg

http://relichunting.net/home/images/fbfiles/images/user26337_pic40562_1350581385.jpg

http://relichunting.net/home/images/fbfiles/images/user26337_pic40561_1350581385.jpg

=====

Re: Bullet in Cartridge?

Posted by jamesbibb - 2012/10/18 08:06

<http://www.coinsandcivilwarshop.com/MVC-042S.JPG>

It may be a burnside cartridge does this look like it? Its a CW carbine that was seperate primed and breech loaded.

=====

Re: Bullet in Cartridge?

Posted by StevoJ - 2012/10/18 13:47

Not exactly I just went back and added the images of the cartridge and frankly the look nothing like the CW carbine you posted. I researched in a field ammunition civil war book I have and found no cartridges of the like. Im still completely stumped.

=====

Re: Bullet in Cartridge?

Posted by kshollywood - 2013/05/17 16:02

Maybe a sharps.

=====